Arrest of Seely Who Robbed a New York Bank of $354,000.

Stoutly Maintains That He Is Not the Defaulting Bank Clerk, Although He Answers the Description.

CHICAGO, Dec 11.—Samuel C. Seely, the absconding bookkeeper of the National Shoe and Leather bank, of New York, who, together with Frederick Baker, embezzled $354,000 of the funds of the bank, was arrested in this city last night by Detective Sergeants, Allmendinger and O'Donnell. He was arrested a few minutes after 11 o'clock in his room at 496 LaSelle avenue, where he had been living the past two weeks.

He positively refused to admit that he was Seely, but half a score of experienced detectives identified him In every characteristic of his appearance he corresponded with the deciription sent broadcast over the country by Inspector McLaughlin, of the New York police. All night long he had sat erect and defiant in the private office of Inspector Shea, and morning found him not a whit less defiant Through the night detectives and officers had taken turns at rigid examinations, but all were unsuccessful, the prisoner insisting that his name is Frank J. Dale

Early today, after finding their questioning useless, the officer tried another tact, and with a seeming doubt as to his identity offered the suspect any luxuries he might wish, and urged him to send for his friends. But this plan did not succeed.

"I have no friends here," said the prisoner. "I want no assistance. I shall stay here until you discover your mistake and let me go. My name is Dale. I never heard of Seely except through the papers. And now I won't talk any more"

And he did not. Reporters come in droves and vainly sought interviews, newspaper artists flocked into the little office and made all sorts of sketches and now and then a detective tried his hand at cross-examination, but through it all the suspect sat unmoved, occasionally yawning as though excessively bored The police were confident today that the man was Seely and so wired to New York, but they confessed themselves puzzled at the man's cool indifference. Officers went out among the banks to search for people who might know Seely and Inspector Shea was confident that he would have the man positively identified before night

Lieutenant Haas, of the detective department, declared that there was not the faintest doubt that Seely had been captured.

"I have carefully compared the photographs and descriptions with the man," he said, "and the resemblance is perfect. The long mustache has been clipped to a stub, but its characteristic droop remains. It is black instead of blonde, but I found evidences of dye on the upper lip. Seely wore his hair pompadour and the prisoner's lies flat, but this man's hair was heavily oiled and carefully pasted down, and when I rump'ed it with my hand it quickly assumed the old pompadour position. The color and peculiarities of this man's eyes correspond exactly with Seely's description. But perhaps the most convincing proof of his identity is a slight malformation of the edge of the right ear and a small growth or 'bump' on the lobe of the same ear. I have offered to send to any part of the country for anyone who could identify him as Dale, but the prisoner declares he has no friends and says he knows of no one sufficiently acquainted with him to identify him. That alone is convincing proof that we have the right man. We expect New York officers here tomorrow."

ADMITS THAT HE IS SEELY

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The New York suspect under arrest here admitted shortly before noon today that he is Samuel C. Seely, the absconding bookkeeper of the National Shoe and Leather bank. He declined to talk of his case, but said he was ready to go back to New York and would make no trouble.

Seely's remarkable coolness and persistency in denying his identity had completely baffled the detectives and they had determined to await the New York officers before making further efforts, when about noon the prisoner told his guard that he wished to see the men in charge of the detective force Inspector Shea and Lieutenant Haas promptly responded, entering the inspector's private office, where the suspect had been confined. "Be seated, gentlemen," Seely said as the officers appeared, and somewhat dazed at his coolness, they sat down. "Now, gentlemen," Seely continued, "I first wish to thank you for your courtesy and kindness since our meeting last night. I have told you repeatedly that my name is Dale, but I have become tired of the deception. I had no sleep last night. I am weary. My name is Seely—Samuel C. Seely, late bookkeeper of the National Shoe and Leather bank, of New York. That is what I wished to say to you."

"Do you care to say anything about your case?" asked the inspector.

"Not a thing. I am ready and willing to go back to New York. I will not make any trouble about extradition. So soon as proper New York officials arrive, I will go with them"

The officers attempted to secure some sort of a statement from Seely regarding his connection with the great steal, but he carefully avoided making either admissions or denials. Finding his efforts in that line unavailing Inspector Shea ordered the man taken to the Harrison street station where he was locked up in a cell to await the arrival of the New York officers Seely's quarters at the Harrison street station were much less comfortable than those he had occupied at headquarters where he was allowed to remain in the private office of Inspector Shea But the stuffy, ill smelling cell had, apparently, no terrors for the ex bookkeeper and removing his ulster he made himself comfortable on the iron bunk. His vocabulary became very limited so soon as the cell door closed before him and to all questions he simply replied: "I have nothing to say."

During the afternoon MacFarland put in an appearance at detective headquarters. He was apparently laboring under a rather heavy burden of intoxicants and his conversation was not particularly lucid He was able, however, to make his hearers understand that he was hot after that $5 000 reward and that he intended to have it all. He would, he declared, divide with no one After making something of a scene at headquarters MacFarland left, but returned several times during the afternoon and made numerous demands for the reward.

Detectives who were sent to look up the informer's record, reported that he had for a week been boasting to his friends that he knew where to find Seely. MacFarland, according to the officers, is an ardent admirer of the flowing bowl and many of his acquaintances say that he frequently during last week, while intoxicated, had declared that he would soon clear $5,000 by a clever piece of detective work. MacFarland is a rather good looking man, perhaps twenty-five years old, dresses well, though flashily, and is said to frequent the race tracks Owing to his condition today the officers were unable to learn anything regarding his acquaintance with Seely.

General Fight Among the Members of the Emmett Company.

Desperate Encounter at Salt Lake, Utah, Between Lawyers—One of Them is Badly Wounded.

OMAHA, Neb, Dec. 11.—As a result of a general fight among the members of the late Emmett dramatic company on the stage of the Empire theater a complaint has been filed in police court charging Catherine Williams, alais Katie Emmett, and Hubert Sackett with assault M. M. Murray, a member of the company, was the complainant. According to the story of an actor who was behind the scenes at the time, Miss Emmett and Murray got into a dispute about the payment of a fine assessed on Murray for some violation of the company's rules. The star of the show slapped Murray in the face. He grabbed the woman's hands to prevent her striking him again and she screamed. Hubert Sackett, one of the heavyweights of the company, jumped into the ring and smashed Murray a couple of times on the face and nose Then the entire company took sides and for a moment it was a free-for-all fight. Sackett was fined and Katie Emmett released.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Dec. 11—The law office of Ferguson, Frew & Jackson, in the Scott-Eurebach building, was the scene last evening of a desperate encounter. As a result, Attorney Tom Ferguson is under the surgeon's care and Attorney General F. Jackson is in the city jail. Both Ferguson and Jackson are members of the same legal firm. There has been some dissatisfaction and a dissolution of the partnership was being arranged. Jackson's story is that a telegram to him was received at the office and was opened; that he went to see about it and a quarrel ensued, that when Ferguson had him on the floor he drew his pistol in self defense and fired at Ferguson's face Frew says the telegram was not opened but came to the office and Mr. Rabbitte, a friend of Jacksons, was taking possession of it. In taking the telegram from Rabbitte a corner of the envelope was torn off, but the telegram was untouched. In this condition it was sent to Jackson's room at the hotel. Rabbitte is from California and is said to be one of a syndicate which sold some mines to the Mercier company. He and Frew remained in the outter office while Jackson went in to see Ferguson.

PENSION FRAUDS.

Ring Leaders in Arkansas Sent to the Penitentiary.

Special Examiners at Work on and Unearthing Big Schemes to Defraud the Government.

WASHINGTON, Dec 11—The pension bureau has received a report from Special Examiner Stockslager, at Fort Smith, Ark, announcing the recent sentence of Tom Bear to six years in the penitentiary and the sentence of T J. Thornton to six months in jail and a $200 fine. This disposes of the ringleaders in a big scheme to defraud the government. They were connected with fully 500 claims, said to be fraudulent and a commission of five special examiners, under the supervision of Examiner Stockslager, is still at work on the conspiracy. There are only two other regular commissions of special examiners now at work on several hundred supposed pension cases. Five examiners, under the supervision of Examiner Au Wau, have been investigating the Leviven cases and are collecting evidence for the use of the United States district attorney in his prosecutions Several others of those involved in the scheme have been indicted and more indictments are expected soon. W. A. Ayers and five other examiners are working on the W. Bowen Moore cases, involving probably the biggest frauds that have been discovered by the bureau for many years. The indicted pension attorney had an agency in Rochester and three examiners are there continuing their investigation. A full commission investigated the transactions of Attorney Hansee, of Hoboken, N. J, who ran a branch office in Ellville, N. Y, and who was also co-implicated in fraudulent cases, but it has now been dissolved. Examiners Fuller and Clements are, however, now at work preparing the evidence of the cases. Including these commissioners 256 examiners are at work in the field investigating frauds and attending to other work of the bureau. Many of this force are making investigation in the south, and especially in the neighborhood of New Orleans, where a large number of colored people are implicated in pension frauds.

INFATUATED WITH HER

And Yet He Attempted to Take Her Life.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 11.—The sensational case in which Dr. Edward St. George Courtenay is charged with assault and attempt to kill Miss Minnie Schilling, daughter of the late Brewer Schilling, will be taken up today in the criminal court. Courtenay was arraigned yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty. The shooting occurred on March 20, 1891, and created a sensation in Compton Hill society circles where Miss Schilling, who is only nineteen years old, and said to be worth $20,000 in her own right, was both prominent and popular. She had known Dr. Courtenay for a long time, and he had become infatuated with either her money or her beauty. Courtenay, however, was married, and trouble with his wife followed as a natural consequence. Miss Schilling, in order to evade the man's unwelcome attentions, went to live with a friend, Mr. Lewig, at 4,120 Aad's avenue. On the day of the shooting Courtenay called at Mr. Lewig's home and persuaded Miss Schilling to see him. Almost as soon as she appeared he drew a revolver and fired three shots, only one of which took effect. The wound was not serious, but Miss Schilling sank to the ground in a faint, and Courtenay, apparently under the impression that he had killed her, turned the weapon on himself. He almost succeeded in killing himself, but recovered after spending several weeks in the hospital. Since his removal to the jail it is thought Courtenay has been feigning insanity. He has given conflicting explanations of his conduct and has told numerous stories which do not appear to have any foundation in fact. Courtenay and his wife have become reconciled recently and she was in court yesterday when the case was called. Miss Schilling was also there and attracted a good deal of attention.

Smothered by Gas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—Charles Johnson and Gustave Wennerberg, owners of a cigar stand on Fourth street, were smothered to death by illuminating gas this morning, at their lodgings on Stevenson street. Both men were prominent in athletic circles, having participated in many tugs-of-war contests as members of a Swedish team.

KING OF SWINDLERS

Under Arrest for Forgery and Embezzlement.

A Suave Rascal of the Pacific Cost, the Narration of Whose Crimes Would Fill a Volume.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—Chief Watts, of the Boston detective department and Andrew Houghton, inspector of police of Boston, who came to the Pacific coast a week ago, have taken with them to Boston John F Dore, known as the king of swindlers. For the past five years he has practiced law in Seattle and is wanted in Boston for forgeries and embezzlement committed prior to 1889. In February of that year he uttered a forged security bond for $2,000 and was released on bail, supplied by his brother-in-law, James Maloney, and immediately skipped Then his past record came out. He had forged orders on savings banks in which poor people had their savings. Eight indictments are out against him for these offenses. Dore located in Miles City, Dakota, in 1888 By his suave manner he secured the confidence of the community which was shaken when he disappeared after swindling the sisters of a religious institution out of $9,000. In Seattle a number of clergymen and women in trusted Dore with money which they never recovered. The narration of his subsequent crimes would fill a volume. He was employed, it is said, by the notorious Hammond, of London fame, or infamy rather, to collect the sums due from members of the aristocracy whose immunity prosecution depended on keeping him (Hammond) out of England. He proved a splendid collector, but he kept the money, it is claimed, and the matter being scandalous, Hammond had no redress.

SENT TO ETERNITY.

Three of the Meachamite Gang Hanged by a Mob.

They Murdered Murphy Pink, a Farmer, Who Lived Long Enough to Name His Assailants.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 11—Three of the notorious Meachamite gang in Clarke county have been sent to eternity by the rope and limb route. The Meachamite gang has for many years run illicit distilleries, made counterfeit money and committed robbery and murder. For a person to give them away meant sure death In August, 1893, James McCorgnedale, a prominent citizen, was assassinated and the citizens drove the gang from the county. No less than ten men met their death. A short while ago the Meachamites returned to their old haunts and began to wreak vengence. Murphy Pink, a farmer, was shot down. Pink made a dying statement, charging George Brunsen, Charles Smith and Lee Brown with the shooting. They were arrested and upon their preliminary trial acquitted After being turned loose, other evidence was found and it became known that they were members of the Meachamite gang The scene is some distance from a telegraph station, but a man just arrived at Whatley, the telegraph office, says the men were lynched.

THE STORY DENIED

WHATLEY, Ala, Dec 11—There is no truth in the report of a lynching at Coffeyville. The men charged with killing Murphy Pink are still in jail and are safe. There is no riots and all is quiet.

NEW ORPHAN ASYLUM.

The Commissioners Asked for an Appropriation of $10,000.

A Jury Case on Trial in Each of the County Courts—New Actions Begun and On Trial.

Senator T E Ellison, Druggist C. F. W. Meyer and J. D Bond were before the county commissioners this morning representing the Allen county orphan asylum, which it is proposed to build in this county. They are asking for an appropriation from the county for this purpose. Under the law the commissioners have the power to give $5,000 or $10,000 for an institution of this kind The Humane society now have twenty-three children to place in such an asylum and the building of it would be a grand thing for the homeless children of the county. Previous to appearing before the commissioners, the papers for the incorporation of the asylum were filed with County Recorder Fickel, giving 200 names of the parties who have taken the stock, and the incorporators: T. E Ellison, Ellen R Bursley, E. A. K. Hackett, Ella W. McDonald, J. D. Bond, Mrs. Addie Crane, S Hirschberg, Jesse M. Bond and J. F. W. Meyer.

WANT IT ESTABLISHED.

Physicians of Fort Wayne Anxious for a Bacteriological Station.

Medical science stood still for many years, but lately it has taken a wonderful stride forward. What was once theory is now demonstrated fact and a new era seems to be upon us. With the germ theory of disease fully demonstrated eminent bacteriologists are studying how best to destroy in the human system the deadly germs, and that they are succeeding is every day becoming more and more apparent First came the consumption cure, and although not the success expected, yet it was a step in the direction which may within a few years lead to as great success as that which is now universally accorded the diphtheria serum.

Fort Wayne physicians have of late been agitating the establishment of a bacteriological station in this city. They ask for the payment of city funds of $500 per year to establish a laboratory (if it may be so called), where the little enemies of the human system may be spied out. A place where a man with chemicals, microscopes and other necessary appliances can determine by examination of sputum and diseased portions of the human body just what particular germ predominates. For instance: A patient begins with a slight cough and certain symptoms which indicate consumption Possibly the trouble may be merely a throat or bronchial affection. But delays are dangerous Only time will determine the exact disease of the patient, for the most learned of our physicians can not for a certainty diagnose a disease correctly in its first stages Now, should the bacteriological station be located in this city, a physician with such a case can, on a day's notice, have the sputum of such a patient analyzed and determine at once whether he is to fight the tubercular bacillus or merely an attack of bronchitis

It is the purpose to have the central station presided over by a skilled bacteriologist and to provide physicians and druggists with necessary vials so they be sent that which is to be analyzed without calling in person or losing any time from their practice or business. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, Bright's disease and hundreds of other diseases can thus be readily detected for our physicians

Most Fort Wayne citizens seem to have a wrong idea of the plan under way. It is not for the treatment of patients that the stat on is to be established but to aid the physician in properly diagnosing a disease on short notice. All the wrangling over croup and diphtheria would, it will readily be seen, be stopped by the introduction of such an auxiliary to the city health department

Whether the project will go through is yet to be determined

A TRAGEDY IMMINENT.

Every Foreigner in the Capital of China Will be Killed

When the Japanese Get Within Sight of That City—The Situation Startling.

PEKING, Dec. 11.—The angry feeling of the Chinese population here against foreigners is increasing

LONDON, Dec. 11—The Globe this afternoon prints a letter from a British resident in China who occupies an important position, which brings him in touch with the mandarins and the masses. The writer says: "A tragedy may occur any day, or when the Japanese come within sight of the capital, I feel certain that every foreigner will be massacred. The foreign ministers will incur a perfectly insane risk if they remain there after the ice has closed the port of Tien Tsin. The greatest danger is in the fact that nearly all the soldiers are members of secret societies, which are ready to break out at the first chance."

BIG FIRE AT BUFFALO.

Bierge's Wall Paper Factory Destroyed.

BUFFALO, Dec. 11—Bierge's wall paper factory, of Niagara and Maryland streets, was entirely destroyed by fire today. The loss is estimated at $250,000, and the insurance is said to nearly cover the damage. The factory was the largest individual plant of the kind in the country, and perhaps in the world. The Bierges did not belong to the wall paper trust. About 500 hands will be thrown out of employment

HIS DAUGHTER FOUND.

Miss Mary Hoffman Writes to Learn About Her Father.

Colored Man Wants His Dress Coat and Vest—Saloon Screens to Come Down at Night.

The superintendent of police is in receipt of an interesting communication from Miss Mary E. Hoffman, of Kansas City. The young lady is a daughter of John Hoffman, who recently attempted to murder Hubert Ailes at the St. Joe hospital and then attempted suicide It was supposed that Hoffman had no relatives living and the receipt of the letter was quite a surprise to the officers Miss Hoffman says the first she knew of the shooting was a day or so ago when she read an account of the affair in an old copy of the Kansas City Star. She was greatly surprised and stated that her father at one time had considerable money. Lately, however, he has been sending to the girl for cash. Miss Hoffman is a domestic and says she works hard for her earnings and wants to know what becomes of the funds she has been sending.

Hoffman is still at the jail and is hopelessly insane. He imagines everybody tries to prevent him from sleeping and would kill a man for snoring if he got a half chance.

WANTS HIS COAT.

The police department is in receipt of a letter from a colored gentleman living at Pullman, Ill, inquiring for another dark skinned citizen who has an extra dress coat and vest. The man at Pullman loaned his friend the garments to come here and be married and now the groom and the togs have both disappeared.

A NEW ORDINANCE

The police department is carrying the saloon war into the city council. Tonight an ordinance will be introduced providing that after 11 o'clock and until 5 o'clock the following morning, all screens, blinds, or any other obstruction that prevents a full view of the interior from the outside, shall be removed The ordinance also provides that at 11 o'clock all persons in the saloons except those regularly employed there shall immediately go out and that the doors of the place shall be locked, and makes it a misdemeanor for anyone to refuse to go out when asked by the proprietor. The same ordinance binds the saloon to observance of the rules on Sunday also and provides an ample penalty for the violation.

POLICE STATISTICS.

There are thirty-four men on the police force. Nineteen are republicans and fifteen democrats. Thirty-one of these men will average in weight 185 pounds. Thirty-one will average five feet, eleven inches in height The average age of all the men is thirty-six years. Of the men on the force fifteen were born in Indiana, twelve in Ohio, one in Michigan, one in New York, four in Germany and one in Scotland. The board of safety has taken great pains to get together a set of men who will be a credit to the community and in this all reasonable citizens will agree that they have succeeded.

ELKS' ENTERTAINMENT.

They Had a Big Audience and Gave a Good Show.

The minstrel entertainment given last evening by the Order of Elks crowded the Masonic Temple to the doors, almost every seat being taken, and was a creditable affair, indeed, as far as the excellence of the performance was concerned. Every act was a gem and every actor a star. The participants on the fine program rendered all acquitted themselves so creditably that it would be impossible to particularize. The first part of the program was rendered by local talent and the latter part by some special artists who were brought here for the occasion The performance was a success in every way, and if it should be repeated would crowd the Temple again. The proceeds will be used by the Elks for charitable purposes

A BEAUTIFUL PLACE.

A Sentinel Representative Takes a Trip Through the People's Store.

Approaching holidays always usher in a busy season for the storekeepers, and no establishment in the city gives better evidence of life and activity than that of the People's store, Beadell & Co., proprietors.

Through the kindness of Mr. H. G Robertson, of the firm, a SENTINEL reporter this morning was shown through the large store. Before entering, the two magnificent windows were justly admired. In one are thousands of books and novelties artistically arranged, and in the other is a handkerchief display which puts to blush anything we have yet seen in this line. That there are over 5,000 handkerchiefs in this window alone gives some idea of the immense amount of labor required for Mr. Rock, the window dresser, to put the display in its present shape. Within the store the masculine mind simply quails before the bewilderment of fabrics hung and displayed at every hand

Beadell & Company have this year given an unusual amount of attention to their book department. All the latest publications, as well as the classics, can be had at prices which will astonish the book buyer The books are the best bindings and prints and one has only to see them to be convinced of their excellence and cheapness. Everything else in the store displays that keen insight into the needs of buyers which is so necessary in conducting a large establishment like that of the People's store.

THEIR NEW HOME.

William Meyer & Brother Ready for Callers.

The furnishings of the new quarters are all solid oak and the floors covered with the latest design of what is known as wood carpeting. The new location is particularly fitted for a gents' furnishing establishment and is well supplied with two large show windows, which are tastefully trimmed The stock of goods which this firm constantly carries has no superior in northern Indiana.

ECZEMA From early childhood until I was grown my family spent a fortune trying to cure me of this disease. I visited Hot Springs, and was treated by the best medical men, but was not benefited. When all things had failed I determined to try S. S. S., and in four months was entirely cured. The terrible Eczema was gone, not a sign of it left; my general health built up, and I have never had any return of the disease. I have since recommended S. S. S. to a number of friends for skin diseases, and have never yet known a failure to cure. GEO. W. IRWIN, Irwin, Pa.

THE Indiana legislature will meet on January 10.

FARM prices of wheat and cotton December 1 were the lowest in years, according to an agricultural department report.

THE opposition to Governor McKinley in Ohio makes it look as if he would not be able to secure a solid delegation from his own state to the national republican convention in 1896.

TENNESSEE'S official vote is at last given to the public. The holding back of returns could not change the result. Evans, the republican candidate, was elected by a plurality of 341 votes. The total vote was Evans, 105,167; Turney, democrat, 104,826.

CHET HALL, of Danville, who has been appointed state oil inspector under State Geologist Blatchley will take office March 1. He will appoint thirteen deputy inspectors, one for each congressional district in the state. He says that these appointments would not be made until after he has taken office. He is receiving applications from many persons in each congressional district, sometimes as many as twenty a day. He says that each man's application will be filed, and will, at the proper time, receive due consideration. The deputy ships are worth from $200 to $900 a year.

A MEMBER of the legislature who believes that the practice should be stopped says he understands that an investigation would probably show that nearly all the men who occupy judicial positions in Indiana ride free on the railroads over which they are accustomed to travel. He also says that nearly all the state officers and most of the county officers have been in the habit of demanding free transportation of the railroad companies. It is suggested that the practice is one which if not prohibited under section 2009, the coming legislature should be called upon to investigate. The railroads do not discuss the subject, but, it is said, there is evidence abundant that nearly every man elected in Indiana last November, from supreme judges down to justices of the peace, has made demands upon the railroads for free transportation.

SENATOR VOORHEES, in an interview in regard to the tariff, said: "My position with respect to further tariff legislation, must be determined by the question of revenue for the government. I would be glad, of course, to have sugar, coal and iron, and, indeed, all other raw materials, free from tariff taxation, if such a thing were possible, but in the present condition of the treasury, who will dare to enter upon legislation making a still greater deficiency in the public revenues? The tariff bill, as it passed the senate and become a law, provided beyond all question a sufficient amount of revenue, and the only reason why a deficiency exists in the treasury arises from the fact that many of its important provisions, the income tax among others, have not yet come into operation. Their postponement was made necessary by the opponents of the bill." Mr. Voorhees took strong grounds against further "tinkering" with the tarifl at this session of congress.

Imbeciles.

In the popular meaning an imbecile is a half witted person. But Martha Louise Clark takes a different view of the subject in a paper in The Arena. Miss Clark is a well known teacher of imbecile children. She divides them into four classes—the harmless, passive sort, who are congenital paupers; the stubborn, brutal ones, governed almost entirely by passion; third, the class that have a little more sense than the former two, but whose sense runs to dishonesty and "little sneaking villainies;" fourth, the class that has some good inclination and "can, with help and sympathy, do fairly well in the struggle for existence."

There is no doing anything permanently with the imbeciles of any class. It is from their ranks that the petty thieves and police court prisoners are recruited. They are not capable of steady work. She tells us that "tramps in thousands of cases betray the characteristic features and expression of the imbecile." The same type of face is frequently found in the penitentiaries.

Of the fourth class, the ones having the most sense, Miss Clark finds they are moral rather than mentalimbeciles. Then is added the fearful sentence, "Thirty-four per cent of the imbecile children are the result of intemperance in parents and are sure to become drunkards themselves." They manifest often the characteristics of Chinese opium eaters, and the writer thinks they often must be the children of opium consuming parents.

The hopeless part of this matter of imbecile children is that there is no giving them permanently either sense, morals or physical health and strength. They are born from parents like themselves. They are the saddest illustration of heredity on record. Most of them are born in slums and poorhouses. They in turn marry and perpetuate their kind. They are surely poisoning the blood of the whole race. Miss Clark mentions a family of seven children in the Pennsylvania institution for imbeciles. They had all been born in a poorhouse from a pauper mother.

That society will permit such reproduction to go on shows that it has no conception of the fearful curse it is bringing upon its own head. The prevention of the marriage and consequent increase of paupers and imbeciles Miss Clark considers to be the only remedy. Stop the deadly, poisoned stream at its source.

Greater New York.

It will probably be necessary to elect one more separate mayor of Brooklyn before the vast consolidation scheme, the greatest ever undertaken by cities, shall be effected. The mayor of New York serves a term of three years, and one has just been elected. The main question of municipal government when the union takes place will be whether it will be wise to give the mayor of greater New York absolute power of appointment and removal of most of the officers who serve the city executive department.

Of the material benefits which will accrue to the whole population from one consolidated government honestly administered there is not a shadow of doubt. It is a common saying that it now requires nearly as long to go from New York to Staten Island or to the outer edge of Brooklyn as it does to go to Philadelphia. When the great consolidation becomes reality, there will be bridges over the river, sound and bay and tunnels under them. There will be one vast system of rapid transit without change of cars. Staten Island expects the greatest boom of its life. A traction company has already secured the right to crisscross the old island with electric railways. Staten Island will become a vast city of residences. The union will probably not be finally accomplished before 1898.

An attempt was made at the trial of the Memphis lynchers to use popular prejudice against the court testimony of an unbeliever or agnostic to defeat justice. One of the witnesses against the lynchers, Butch Carver, tried to get off from giving evidence on the ground that he was an infidel, and therefore not a credible witness. But Judge Cooper suppressed this foolishness by ruling that Carver was a competent witness. Here indeed is an instance of stealing the livery of the court of heaven to serve the devil in.

Why does real economy prescribe the use of Dr. Price's Baking Powder? Because it is stronger, purer and more wholesome than any other.

More Fort Wayne physicians have been using the anti-toxine remedy than the public is aware of, on account of the extreme modesty of the profession. They all report excellent results, and are anxious to obtain a new supply of the solution—which is difficult to get just now.

Old Fashioned —compound cathartic pills, "blue pills," calomel or other mercurial preparations, should not be used in these days of enlightened medical science, when it is so easy to get a purely vegetable pill in concentrated form, sugar-coated, in glass vials, at any store where medicines are kept.

Dr. Pierce was first to introduce a Little Pill to the American people. Many have imitated them, but none have approached his "Pleasant Pellets" in true worth, or value, for all laxative and cathartic purposes.

Once Used, they are Always in Favor.

Assist Nature a little now and then, with a gentle, cleansing laxative, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness, pimples, blotches, eruptions, boils, constipation, piles, fistula and maladies too numerous to mention.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

That, of all known agents to accomplish this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequaled, is proven by the fact that once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, the great popularity, with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and indigestion.

They absolutely cure sick headache, biliousness, constipation, coated tongue, poor appetite, dyspepsia and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

A free sample of these "Pellets," (1 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card.

To give, or not to give, that is the question. Whether it is better to stint the purse for weeks to come in order to make a display on one day out of 365, or to incur the passing slurs of momentary disappointment. That is the conundrum that makes us pause these ante-Christmas days, when the fever of giving is full upon us and we would gladly mortgage our incomes for months ahead as long as we might revel in the present whirlwind of gift buying. If Christmas means to us and to others what it ought to, then the spirit of the day can be as well exemplified by simple remembrances that speak of peace and love quite as earnestly as the more expensive gifts that should only be chosen by those who can afford such to give. If you are blessed with an abundance of this world's goods, give liberally out of that abundance; if not, be just a little less enthusastic and keep within your means, if you wish your Christmas day to be a truly happy one.

COLONEL BOWIE'S BLADE.

He Wielded a Deadly Weapon That Made His Name Immortal.

Two states claim the birthplace of Colonel James Bowie—Tennessee and Maryland—and the question has never been definitely settled, but he gave the name to a weapon as deadly as any that has ever been forged from steel.

Shortly after Louisiana became a state the old Spanish and French records created a great deal of trouble. It frequently happened that a planter who had taken up a large tract of land and fairly opened it out as a plantation would learn that it was claimed by some one under an old colonial grant. James Bowie was a very frequent claimant under these old laws, says a Chicago Times writer. Several capitalists of the time had sent him to Havana, where the old papers of the Spanish colony of Louisiana were kept, and caused careful transcripts of them to be made. They appointed as their agent to put them in possession of these properties James Bowie. In these early days it did not at any time take much provocation to bring on "a personal encounter," as a fight to the death was euphoniously entitled. A man who had been to the trouble of opening up an estate only to find it claimed by a lot of people he did not know was generally pretty ready to fight for it, whether a fight would settle the question or not.

The consequence of this state of things was that James Bowie and his two brothers, Stephen and Rezin Bowie, had on hand almost constantly some sort of "difficulty" that had to be fought out with deadly weapons. This was before the days when the percussion cap was in general use, and the smaller pistols of the period were flintlocks, inconvenient to carry and not very reliable. So the knife had to be used when one wanted a really trusted weapon. Mr. Bowie worked out with a pocketknife and shingle his idea of a weapon that would be about the proper thing for the business he had in hand, and it was made by the local blacksmith at Shreveport, La., after this model, which he carried for several years.

About 1830, however, he heard of a New Orleans cutler, a Spaniard named Pedro, who was making some knives of a wonderful kind and temper. They could be driven through a silver dollar without damage to point or edge. Mr. Bowie at once availed himself of the professional services of this artist, who made him a knife which was a marvel of temper and beauty. The blade was 9 inches long, and blade and handle together measured 15 inches. He used this weapon in 19 encounters, and it was in his stiffening hand when, with six dead Mexicans about him, showing the evidence of his fatal skill, he was found dead at the Alamo.

SAMUEL DUNCAN KARNS.

COLONEL BOWIE PRESERVES ORDER.

Bowie's method of using the knife was one peculiar to himself. He did not hold it in his hand with the long point downward, but grasped the handle as a swordsman would grasp the hilt of his sword. He always struck at the neck of his man and aimed for the jugular and seldom missed his coup. In the most famous of his battles—the one fought on Natchez Island, an island in the Mississippi river almost opposite the city of Natchez—he cut two men's heads almost off, giving each only a single sweeping blow.

Bowie only weighed 140 pounds when at his prime. He was a quiet, soft voiced man, who never drank nor dissipated in any way. He possessed enormous physical strength for his size and was as quick and lithe as a wildcat and as game. He was a terror to all the "hard cases" from Louisville to New Orleans.

In 1836 the Methodists about Church Hill, Miss., were holding their annual meeting. They had been a good deal disturbed by the crews of rough flatboatmen, a large number of whose boats were lying in the river below the town. One morning after service was ended a number of the men held a meeting to decide upon the measures to abate this trouble. Among them the parson, who was a newcomer, noticed a small man whose only peculiarity was a pair of steely, blue ringed eyes—eyes like a cat. "I will attend the services tonight, gentlemen," he said in a low, gentle voice, "and will help you to settle any difficulty that may occur." This seemed very satisfactory to those present, but the clergyman somehow forgot to ask who he was.

The evening service had begun. Just as the preacher was about giving out the second hymn a big Kentucky flatboatman staggered up in front of the pulpit and gave a Choctaw warwhoop. In a second the little man had him by the collar with his left hand, and in his right had a knife, with its point against the boatman's brawny throat. "If you say another word or make the slightest noise, by G—, I'll drive this knife through your neck from ear to ear!" The big man trembled like a leaf and silently took a seat, while the other, putting his knife out of sight, joined with great fervor in the singing of the hymn. There was never a quieter meeting held than that was thereafter. "Who was the gentleman who so speedily settled the difficulty tonight?" asked the minister when the service was ended. "Don't you know?" his friend replied. "That was James Bowie."

A NEW BELLAMY COLONY.

Nationalism to Receive a Practical Demonstration at Beltzhoover, Pa.

The Bellamy Co-operative association of Beltzhoover, Pa., is to found a colony in Beltzhoover, and the cornerstone was recently laid by Mrs. Samuel Duncan Karns, wife of Dune Karns, an oil region pioneer who was at one time worth millions. The colonists will endeavor to carry out Edward Bellamy's theories of nationalism.

There are 14 full and 50 associate members of the colony, and the full members are to do the work at present and receive their pay in colony certificates at the rate of 25 cents an hour. These certificates authorize the holder to draw a proportionate share of the products of the association. The associate members will give their aid in either money or labor while they are on probation and will be entitled to all the privileges of the colony except the privilege of voting. When they are believed to have absorbed the true principles of Bellamy nationalism, they will be received into full membership. The association owns nine building lots, which were deeded the colony by Edward White, one of the members, in exchange for colony certificates. No money will be used by the colonists except in their dealings with the outside world, and they will build houses and manufacture different articles as a means of livelihood.

Dune Karns, who displays such an interest in the colony, was an oil region character almost as celebrated as Coal Oil Johnny. He was born at Karns Station, in Butler county, Pa., 51 years ago, was boring for oil in West Virginia before the war, entered the United States army at the age of 17, fought throughout the rebellion and left the service a first lieutenant. After the war he returned to the oil business, and at one time he had an income of $5,000 a day from a single oil well. Dune was fond of champagne, and whenever he made a rich strike he would smash every silk hat in town and pay for them the next day. He was at one time considered worth $3,000,000, but lost nearly all his money fighting the Standard Oil company.

SOMETHING WRONG.

A Policeman Meets a Man Who Is Too Grateful.

For five or six minutes the other afternoon a patrolman stood at the foot of Woodward avenue alongside of a young man who had a satchel in his hand and was waiting for a ferryboat. At length, as the officer started to saunter away, the young man handed him a cigar and said: "Thanks. I'll always remember your kindness."

"What is it?" queried the bluecoat as he hesitated over the cigar.

"Take it—take two of 'em! I'm a man who can appreciate a favor."

"But I—I"—

"That's all right—take three of 'em. I've traveled over most of this country and know a man when I see him."

"Will you explain yourself?" asked the officer as he sleepily regarded the stranger to see if he was drunk or crazy.

"Certainly. Here I am, a perfect stranger to you. You have the right to walk up and crack me with your club and ask who in thunder I am and what I am hanging around here for. You could take my satchel and fling it into the river, and you could drag me to a dungeon cell and keep me immured for years and years. Have you done anything of the sort?"

"As to that"— began the officer, but the young man brought out two more cigars and said:

"Take the whole five! I haven't much wealth, but I want to show my gratitude as best I can. You, sir, are one of nature's noblemen, and though I live for the next 50 years I shall never forget you. Instead of cracking me over the head and then jumping on my unconscious body with both feet and dragging me to the station over the cobblestones, you have acted the part of a gentleman and a man who respects the rights of others. Sir, let me again assure you that I shall never forget this consideration on your part. Officer, farewell!"

He made a break for the boat and was lost to view, and after thinking it over for five minutes the officer pocketed the cigars and growled:

"Something wrong there somewhere. If I ever see him again, I'll run him in for his gratitude."—Detroit Free Press.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. Your Laundress' Back, and her time, are not the only things that you save, if she uses Pearline. You'll get your clothes washed without that ruinous rub, rub, rub that wears them out quickly. It's a gain for her and a gain for you, and they're washed just as safely as they could be with the best soap—only a great deal more easily.

But see for yourself that what she uses is Pearline—the original washing-compound; the best; the one proved to be perfectly harmless. All these washing-powders that you're warned against are only imitations of Pearline. 406 JAMES PYLE, New York.

RAILWAYS AND SHOPS.

General Superintendent Magee, of the Wabash, is Here.

Louis Hudry Will be Buried Thursday—A New Car Ventilating Device.

General Superintendent H. L. Magee and Division Supt E A Gould, of the Wabash road, arrived in the city in the former's special car this morning. They remained here until this afternoon.

VENTILATING CAR WINDOWS

Two of the greatest banes of steam railway traveling are smoke and dust, and any attempt to enable a traveler to reach his destination with even a moderate sense of cleanliness will meet with its own reward. A ventilating window has been tried for some time in the care of a progressive railway company, says the St Louis 'Globe Democrat, with a view to remedy the inadequacy of the ordinary methods of car ventilation. The window has a single sash hinged at both ends and sides by slip-hinges, so that either side can be opened, or the sash can be pushed outward, parallel with the side of the car. Under ordinary conditions the window is swung open from the front hinges, so that the opening is protected by the sash There is such a supply of fresh air that practically no inconvenience is experienced from the smoke of the locomotive. The rush of air past the window creates an exhaust and draws out the air from the car, fresh air being supplied through the deck windows in summer, while in winter the leakage of air around the deck windows and front door is sufficient for ventilation. So that a continuous exhaust goes on through the windows at all times. The nuisance of dust and the entrance of rain is prevented by a water table over the window, and there is also a brass shield on the bottom of the sash to hinder the dust from entering beneath. The shield slides in a grove in a sill The sash closes against rubber strips, making an airtight fit when closed. To prevent the sashes being opened the wrong way a locking rod extends the length of the car, which is fitted over each platform. This rod is under the control of the brakeman, who locks the hinges of the leading side of the window in the same way as on suburban cars; the alternate deck lights are opened or closed according to the direction in which the car is running In a test of this new ventilator, the windows were purposely opened in the tunnels, and the small quantity of smoke that leaked in around the drop window, in the doorway and at the forward deck lights was exhausted by the window air current, and the air at the rear end of the car was sweet and clean.

Important to Men of Fashion.

"I beg of the young men that still wear very long frock coats and think themselves well dressed to stop it at once," says The Sauntorer in Town Topics "The long frock coat has been out of fashion for weeks, and London coats are now made extremely short, ending above the knee and branching out like a ballerina's skirts This notice should be put up in all clubs I see that even some of the Knickerbocker men are still clinging to their last winter freak frock coats, with skirts that all but scrape the ground And I suppose everybody has seen the new London derby hat It is as flat as a pancake and looks considerably like a fried egg."

Martin Karns writes from Bluff City, Kas., making inquiries concerning some of his relatives, who, he says, resided in Arcola fifteen years ago, but have since left that place. The street car company has issued a new set of orders to motormen, which will, no doubt, operate successfully in reducing the number of accidents The new rules inform the men that citizens on street crossings are not trespassing, but have as good a right there as an electric car. The new and faster schedule of running time on the cars was published in THE SENTINEL last Thursday. The service now being given by the company is excellent.

The Sol D Bayless lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, held its annual meeting last night at the Temple, and elected the following officers: Worthy master, C. L Carter, senior warden, F. M. At 12:30 o'clock this morning the fire department was called to No. 12 Summit street, where a barn in the rear of Fred Teetmeyer's residence was in flames. The fire was a hot one while it lasted. A cow was turned out, but a lot of hay and a dozen or so chickens were burned up. The barn was insured for enough to cover the loss, which amounts to about $150. The neighboring barn, on the property occupied by G. W. Graham, was also consumed with the contents. This barn is the property of James Smith, of Lewis street, and is insured to cover the loss. It is supposed that tramps who were sleeping in the haymow caused the fire.

GOOD ADVICE.

This Will Help You Out---Perhaps You Had Not Thought of it Before.

If you are not just ready to buy a new piano or organ, why not take a look through our second-hand stock and select an organ or piano for the present, with the privilege of exchanging it on a new instrument at any time within one year, at same as you gave. Thus you are practically paying nothing for the use of old instrument, but simply applying the amount on a new one, such as you will be ready for within six months or a year.

In this way you will not be paying rent or depriving your children of the advantages of a musical training when it is time now they should be learning.

We have good, second-hand organs, high top $18 and up Good, square pianos, $22 and up, on easy monthly payments if desired.

You had better call early, as we only have a limited number at the above prices

In view of the fact that on January 1, 1895, the new TARIFF RATES on Woolens and Manufactured Goods will go into effect, manufacturers of clothing throughout the country have made every effort to dispose of the stock that they had manufactured this season, as the carrying over of merchandise this season would mean a GREAT LOSS to them. Some were successful in disposing of their stock, as there had been a fair demand for merchandise this fall, but the large majority of them are still loaded down and are awaiting an opportunity to unload at some price. We were approached by many offering us every inducement to buy, but we held off until this lot of suits were offered us by MICHAELS, STERN & CO., of Rochester, N. Y. This is the class of clothing that we are always looking for. The STYLE is right—the MAKE is right—the FIT is right, and the price that we have put upon them is less than you have ever bought similar qualities before. Gentlemen, come into our store, and give us a few minutes of your time, by trying on one of these suits and get the correct idea of the fit, make, style and workmanship of these suits. Do not think that because the price is so low that the goods must necessarily be of a similar standard. All we ask is a look, and if you are not satisfied that you are making a saving of $3.00 to $5.00, don't buy.

'Tis well if you have deferred the purchase of a winter suit for now we offer this grand opportunity, which enables you to own an elegant and stylish suit at a fractional part of its real worth. We are and always have been "up to date." In the year 1894 we sell 1894 goods, nothing else. That's what are included in this sale. No short bob-tail sack coats, but the new, extra long cut. The variety of fabrics include: Black Clay Worsteds and Cheviots, Dark Cassimeres, and Fancy Mixed Cheviots and unfinished Worsteds. There is also a few of the fashionable steel and grey effects in Cheviots and Cassimeres. Every one of these suits were made for this season's trade. Every pattern we show is new, and the trimmings and workmanship is all that you can desire. These suits are actually worth $13, $15, $16 and $18, and you would consider them cheap at that. So confident are we of their strong value that we court a comparison with what other dealers will show you at from $3 to $5 higher in price. If you are interested in a good winter suit be on hand early as the quantities are not large and the line of sizes will will soon be broken.

See Our POOL OVERCOATS, 46, 48 and 50 inches long, made of Fine Kerseys, at $15.

BIG THIEF TAKEN.

Arrest of Seely Who Robbed a New York Bank of $534,000.

Shortly Maintains That He Is Not the Defaulting Bank Clerk, Although He Answers the Description.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Samuel C. Seely, the absconding bookkeeper of the National Shoe and Leather bank, of New York, who, together with Frederick Baker, embezzled $534,000 of the funds of the bank, was arrested in this city last night by Detective Sergeants, Allmendinger and O'Donnell. He was arrested a few minutes after 11 o'clock in his room at 466 LaSalle avenue, where he had been living the past two weeks.

He positively refused to admit that he was Seely, but half a score of experienced detectives identified him in every characteristic of his appearance he corresponded with the description sent broadcast over the country by Inspector McLaughlin, of the New York police. All night long he had sat erect and defiant in the private office of Inspector Shea, and morning found him not a whit less defiant. Through the night detectives and officers had taken turns at rigid examinations, but all were unsuccessful, the prisoner insisting that his name is Frank J. Dale.

Early today, after finding their questioning useless, the officer tried another tact, and with a seeming doubt as to his identity offered the suspect any luxuries he might wish, and urged him to send for his friends. But this plan did not succeed.

"I have no friends here," said the prisoner. "I want no assistance. I shall stay here until you discover your mistake and let me go. My name is Dale. I never heard of Seely except through the papers. And now I won't talk any more."

And he did not. Reporters came in droves and vainly sought interviews, newspaper artists flocked into the little office and made all sorts of sketches and now and then a detective tried his hand at cross examination, but through it all the suspect sat unmoved, occasionally yawning as though excessively bored. The police were confident today that the man was Seely and so wired to New York, but they confessed themselves puzzled at the man's cool indifference. Officers went out among the banks to search for people who might know Seely and Inspector Shea was confident that he would have the man positively identified before night.

Lieutenant Haas, of the detective department, declared that there was not the faintest doubt that Seely had been captured.

"I have carefully compared the photographs and descriptions with the man," he said, "and the resemblance is perfect. The long mustache has been clipped to a stub, but its characteristic droop remains. It is black instead of blonde, but I found evidences of dye on the upper lip. Seely wore his hair pompadour and the prisoner's lies flat, but this man's hair was heavily oiled and carefully pasted down, and when I rumpled it with my hand it quickly assumed the old pompadour position. The color and peculiarities of this man's eyes correspond exactly with Seely's description. But perhaps the most convincing proof of his identity is a slight malformation of the edge of the right ear and a small growth or "bump" on the lobe of the same ear. I have offered to send to any part of the country for anyone who could identify him as Dale, but the prisoner declares he has no friends and says he knows of no one sufficiently acquainted with him to identify him. That alone is convincing proof that we have the right man. We expect New York officers here tomorrow."

ADMITS THAT HE IS SEELY.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The New York suspect under arrest here admitted shortly before noon today that he is Samuel C. Seely, the absconding bookkeeper of the National Shoe and Leather bank. He declined to talk of his case, but said he was ready to go back to New York and would make no trouble.

Seely's remarkable coolness and persistency in denying his identity had completely baffled the detectives and they had determined to await the New York officers before making further efforts, when about noon the prisoner told his guard that he wished to see the men in charge of the detective force. Inspector Shea and Lieutenant Haas promptly responded, entering the inspector's private office, where the suspect had been confined. "Be seated, gentlemen," Seely said as the officers appeared, and somewhat dazed at his coolness, they sat down. "Now, gentlemen," Seely continued, "I first wish to thank you for your courtesy and kindness since our meeting last night. I have told you repeatedly that my name is Dale, but I have become tired of the deception. I had no sleep last night, I am weary. My name is Seely—Samuel C. Seely, late bookkeeper of the National Shoe and Leather bank, of New York. That is what I wished to say to you."

"Do you care to say anything about your case?" asked the inspector.

"Not a thing. I am ready and will go to go back to New York. I will not make any trouble about extradition. So soon as proper New York officials arrive, I will go with them."

The officers attempted to secure some sort of a statement from Seely regarding his connection with the great steal but he carefully evaded making either admissions or denials. Finding his efforts in that line unavailing Inspector Shea ordered the man taken to the Harrison street station where he was locked up in a cell to await the arrival of the New York officers. Seely's quarters at the Harrison street station were much less comfortable than those he had occupied at headquarters where he was allowed to remain in the private office of Inspector Shea. But the stuffy, ill ventilated cell had apparently no terrors for the ex-bookkeeper and removing his ulster he made himself comfortable on the iron bunk. His vocabulary became very limited so soon as the cell door closed before him and to all questions he simply replied: "I have nothing to say."

During the afternoon MacFarland put in an appearance at detective headquarters. He was apparently laboring under a rather heavy burden of intoxicants and his conversation was not particularly lucid. He was able, however, to make his bearers understand that he was not after that $5,000 reward and that he intended to have it all. He would, he declared, divide with no one. After making something of a scene at headquarters MacFarland left, but returned several times during the afternoon and made numerous demands for the reward.

Detectives who were sent to look up the informer's record, reported that he had for a week been boasting to his friends that he knew where to find Seely. MacFarland, according to the officers, is an ardent admirer of the dashing bond and many of his acquaintances say that he frequently during last week, while intoxicated, had declared that he would soon clear $5,000 by a clever piece of detective work. MacFarland is a rather good looking man, perhaps twenty-five years old, dresses well, though flashily, and is said to frequent the race track. Owing to his condition today the officers were unable to learn anything regarding his acquaintance with Seely.

General Fight Among the Members of the Emmett Company.

Desperate Encounter at Salt Lake, Utah, Between Lawyers—One of Them is Badly Wounded.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 11.—As a result of a general fight among the members of the late Emmett dramatic company on the stage of the Empire theater a complaint has been filed in police court charging Catherine Williams, alais Katie Emmett, and Robert Sackett with assault. M. M. Murray, a member of the company, was the complainant. According to the story of an actor who was behind the scenes at the time, Miss Emmett and Murray got into a dispute about the payment of a fine assessed on Murray for some violation of the company's rules. The star of the show stepped Murray in the face. He grabbed the woman's hands to prevent her striking him again and she screamed. Robert Sackett, one of the heavyweights of the company, jumped into the ring and smashed Murray a couple of times on the face and nose. Then the entire company took sides and for a moment it was a free-for-all fight. Sackett was fined and Katie Emmett released.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Dec. 11.—The law office of Ferguson, Frew & Jackson, in the Scott-Burbach building, was the scene last evening of a desperate encounter. As a result, Attorney Tom Ferguson is under the surgeon's care and Attorney General F. Jackson is in the city jail. Both Ferguson and Jackson are members of the same legal firm. There has been some dissatisfaction and a dissolution of the partnership was being arranged. Jackson's story is that a telegram to him was received at the office and was opened; that he went to see about it and a quarrel ensued, that when Ferguson had him on the floor he drew his pistol in self defense and fired at Ferguson's face. Frew says the telegram was not opened but came to the office and Mr. Rabbitte, a friend of Jackson, was taking possession of it. In taking the telegram from Rabbitte a corner of the envelope was torn off, but the telegram was untouched. In this condition it was sent in Jackson's room at the hotel. Rabbitte is from California and is said to be one of a syndicate which sold some mines to the Mercier company. He and Frew remained in the outer office while Jackson went in to see Ferguson.

The union revival services of the five Methodist churches of this city, which have been in progress for the last eight weeks, are being held this week and next at the Wayne Street M. The Methodist pastors urge the members of their congregations to attend these meetings and assist in making the closing two weeks' service productive of great good.

PENSION FRAUDS.

Ring Leaders in Arkansas Sent to the Penitentiary.

Special Examiners at Work on and Unearthing Big Schemes to Defraud the Government.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. The pension bureau has received a report from Special Examiner Stocksleger, at Fort Smith, Ark., announcing the recent sentence of Tom Bear to six years in the penitentiary and the sentence of T. J. Thornton to six months in jail and a $200 fine. This disposes of the ring leaders in a big scheme to defraud the government. They were connected with fully 500 claims, said to be fraudulent and a commission of five special examiners, under the supervision of Examiner Stocksleger, is still at work on the conspiracy. There are only two other regular commissions of special examiners now at work on several hundred supposed pension cases. Five examiners, under the supervision of Examiner Au Wau, have been investigating the Leyiren cases and are collecting evidence for the use of the United States district attorney in his prosecutions. Several others of those involved in the scheme have been indicted and more indictments are expected soon. W. A. Avers and five other examiners are working on the W. Bowen Moore cases, involving probably the biggest frauds that have been discovered by the bureau for many years. The indicted pension attorney had an agency in Rochester and three examiners are there continuing their investigation. A full commission investigated the transactions of Attorney Hamee, of Hoboken, N. J., who ran a branch office in Elville, N. Y., and who was also complicated in fraudulent cases, but it has now been dissolved. Examiners Fuller and Clemmons are, however, now at work preparing the evidence of the cases, including these commissioners. 300 examiners are at work in the field investigating frauds and attending to other work of the bureau. Many of this force are making investigation in the south, and especially in the neighborhood of New Orleans, where a large number of colored people are implicated in pension frauds.

And Yet He Attempted to Take Her Life.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 11.—The sensational case in which Dr. Edward St. George Courtenay is charged with assault and attempt to kill Miss Minnie Schilling, daughter of the late Brewer Schilling, will be taken up today in the criminal court. Courtenay was arraigned yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty. The shooting occurred on March 20, 1894, and created a sensation in Compton Hill society circles where Miss Schilling, who is only nineteen years old, and said to be worth $200,000 in her own right, was both prominent and popular. She had known Dr. Courtenay for a long time, and he had become infatuated with either her money or her beauty. Courtenay, however, was married, and trouble with his wife followed as a natural consequence. Miss Schilling, in order to evade the man's unwelcome attentions, went to live with a friend, Mr. Lewis, at 4,199 Aeds avenue. On the day of the shooting Courtenay called at Mr. Lewis's home and persuaded Miss Schilling to see him. Almost as soon as she appeared he drew a revolver and fired three shots, only one of which took effect. The wound was not serious, but Miss Schilling sank to the ground in a faint, and Courtenay, apparently under the impression that he had killed her, turned the weapon on himself. He almost succeeded in killing himself, but recovered after spending several weeks in the hospital. Since his removal to the jail it is thought Courtenay has been feigning insanity. He has given conflicting explanations of his conduct and has told numerous stories which do not appear to have any foundation in fact. Courtenay and his wife have become reconciled recently and she was in court yesterday when the case was called. Miss Schilling was also there and attracted a good deal of attention.

FLORIDA CYCLONE.

It Demolishes the Home of a Legislator.

WESTVILLE, Fla., Dec. 11.—A cyclone passed five miles north of this place early Sunday morning. It struck the farm of J. N. Skinner, the representative-elect from Holmes county, and demolished every building on the place. Every member of Mr. Skinner's family was injured and his wounds, it is thought, will prove fatal.

Smothered to Gas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—Charles Johnson and Gustavo Wennenberg, owners of a cigar stand on Fourth street, were smothered to death by illuminating gas this morning, at their lodgings on Stevenson street. Both men were prominent in athletic circles, having participated in many tugs of war contests as members of a Swedish team.

Hard times have increased the sales of Dr. Price's Baking Powder. The increase shows that consumers have an eye, not to the quality of its work alone, but to the great saving it insures by reason of its superior strength.

Matched to Race.

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 11.—Ira Patchen and Ryland T. have been matched to race at Corsicana City, tonight, December 13, for $1,000 a side. The conditions provide that the rider of Joe Patchen carry five pounds additional weight.

KING OF SWINDLERS

Under Arrest for Forgery and Embezzlement.

A Sensational Capture on the Pacific Coast, the Narration of Whose Crimes Would Fill a Volume.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—Chief Watts, of the Boston detective department and Andrew Houghton, inspector of police of Boston, who came to the Pacific coast a week ago, have taken with them to Boston John F. Dore, known as the king of swindlers. For the past five years he has practiced law in Seattle and is wanted in Boston for forgeries and embezzlement committed prior to 1889. In February of that year he uttered a forged security bond for $2,000 and was released on bail, supplied by his brother-in-law, James Maloney, and immediately skipped. Then his past record came out. He had forged orders on savings banks in which poor people had their savings. Eight indictments are out against him for these offenses. Dore located in Miles City, Dakota, in 1888. By his suave manner he secured the confidence of the community which was shaken when he disappeared after swindling the sisters of a religious institution out of $9,000. In Seattle a number of clergymen and women intrusted Dore with money which they never recovered. The narration of his subsequent crimes would fill a volume. He was employed, it is said, by the notorious Hammond, of London fame, or infamy rather, to collect the sums due from members of the aristocracy whose immunity prosecution depended on keeping him (Hammond) out of England. He proved a splendid collector, but he kept the money, it is claimed, and the matter being scandalous, Hammond had no redress.

SENT TO ETERNITY.

Three of the Merchanville Gang Hanged by a Mob.

They Murdered Murphy Fink, a Farmer, Who Lived Long Enough to Name His Assailants.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 11.—Three of the notorious Meschanite gang in Clarke county have been sent to eternity by the rope and limb route. The Meschanite gang has for many years run illicit distilleries, made counterfeit money and committed robbery and murder. For a person to give them away meant sure death. In August, 1893, James McGorgendale, a prominent citizen, was assassinated and the citizens drove the gang from the county. No less than ten men met their death. A short while ago the Meschanites returned to their old haunts and began to wreak vengence. Murphy Fink, a farmer, was shot down. Fink made a dying statement, charging George Runnyon, Charles Smith and Lee Brown with the shooting. They were arrested and upon their preliminary trial acquitted. After being turned loose, other evidence was found and it became known that they were members of the Meschanite gang. The scene is some distance from a telegraph station, but a man just arrived at Whatley, the telegraph office, says the men were lynched.

THE STORY DENIED.

WHATLEY, Ala., Dec. 11.—There is no truth in the report of a lynching at Coffeyville. The men charged with killing Murphy Fink are still in jail and are safe. There is no riots and all is quiet.

NEW ORPHAN ASYLUM.

The Commissioners Asked for an Appropriation of $10,000.

A Jury Case on Trial in Each of the County Courts—New Actions Begun and on Trial.

Some of T. E. Ellison, Democrat C. F. W. Mc, and J. D. Bond were before the county commissioners this morning representing the Allen county orphans' asylum, which it is proposed to build in this county. They are asking for an appropriation from the county for this purpose. Under the law the commissioners have the power to give $5,000 or $10,000 for an institution of this kind. The Humane society now have twenty-three children to place in such an asylum and the building of it would be a grand thing for the homeless children of the county. Previous to appearing before the commissioners, the papers for the incorporation of the asylum were filed with County Recorder Pickel, giving 300 names of the parties who have taken the stock, and the incorporators: T. E. Ellison, Ellen H. Burdet, E. A. K. Hackett, Ella W. McDonald, J. D. Bond, Mrs. Addie Gratz, S. Hirschberg, Jesse M. Bond and J. F. W. Meyer.

Judge Dawson and a jury are engaged in hearing the case of Bridget Farnan against the city of Fort Wayne. Some time ago the plaintiff, on account of a defective sidewalk on Hayden street, fell and broke her ankle. She alleges that this injury was due to the city's negligence in not keeping the sidewalk in proper repair and hence sued for $5,000 damages. Henry Colerick represents the plaintiff and Swayne & Nirdo the defendant.

The suit of Daniel M. Kohler against Andrew J., Uriah H., and Catherine Kohler to recover the title to property at 305 South Calhoun street, is on trial before Judge O'Rourke and a jury in the circuit court. In 1885 the property in question was deeded by Daniel M. Kohler, to avoid the payment of certain claims, to his brother in trust for his children, the three defendants, and he seeks now by this suit to have the title to this property reconveyed to him. Judge Colerick represents the plaintiff and J. M. Robinson the defendant.

Charles Pierson was on trial last evening in the court of Justice Huser on the charge of assaulting Nicholas Alt with a stone at his home near the county infirmary several weeks ago. After hearing the evidence the justice fined the defendant $1 and costs. Pierson gave bail and cleared the docket.

John Dimon has brought suit in the circuit court against the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad company for damages in the sum of $600. T. E. Ellison is attorney for the plaintiff.

The case of Mary E. Fledermann against Mary A. Monning has been dismissed.

Judgment has been rendered on the verdict of the jury in the case of Louis Heinricks against P. A. Randall and others.

A remonstrance has been filed against granting a liquor license to Fred Webber, a West Main street saloonkeeper. The case will be heard Thursday by the county commissioners.

Colerick & Franco, as attorneys for the plaintiff, have filed a petition in the superior court asking that their client, Luella Way, may be given a divorce from Joseph Way, and also granted alimony in the sum of $3,000. Abandonment and failure to provide are the causes alleged for a divorce.

John H. Bass has begun an action in the superior court to foreclose a mechanic's lien of $1,200 against Seymour Smith et al., and the city of Fort Wayne. The action is about the crematory and the city is made a party for the purpose of garnisheeing money in its hands belonging to the defendant.

WANT IT ESTABLISHED.

Physicians of Fort Wayne Anxious for a Bacteriological Station.

Medical science stood still for many years, but lately it has taken a wonderful stride forward. What was once a theory is now demonstrated fact and a new era seems to be upon us. With the germ theory of disease fully demonstrated eminent bacteriologists are studying how best to destroy in the human system the deadly germs, and that they are succeeding in every day becoming more and more apparent. First came the consumption cure, and although not the success expected, yet it was a step in the direction which may within a few years lead to as great success as that which is now universally accorded the diphtheria serum.

Fort Wayne physicians have of late been agitating the establishment of a bacteriological station in this city. They ask for the payment of city funds of $300 per year to establish a laboratory (if it may be so called), where the little enemies of the human system may be ejied out. A place where a man with chemicals, microscopes and other necessary appliances can determine by examination of sputum and diseased portions of the human body just what particular germ predominates. For instance: A patient begins with a slight cough and certain symptoms which indicate consumption. Possibly the trouble may be merely a throat or bronchial affection. But delays are dangerous. Only time will determine the exact disease of the patient, for the most learned of our physicians can not for a certainty diagnose a disease correctly in its first stages. Now, should the bacteriological station be located in this city, a physician with such a case can, on a day's notice, have the sputum of such a patient analyzed and determine at once whether he is to fight the tubercular bacillus or merely an attack of bronchitis.

It is the purpose to have the central station presided over by a skilled bacteriologist and to provide physicians and druggists with necessary vials so they be sent that which is to be analyzed without calling in person or losing any time from their practice or business. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, Bright's disease and hundreds of other diseases can thus be readily detected for our physicians.

Most Fort Wayne citizens seem to have a wrong idea of the plan under way. It is not for the treatment of patients that the state or is to be established but to aid the physician in properly diagnosing a disease on short notice. All the wrangling over croup and diphtheria would, it will readily be seen, be stopped by the introduction of such an auxiliary to the city health department.

Whether the project will go through is yet to be determined.

A TRAGEDY IMMINENT.

Every Foreigner in the Capital of China Will be Killed

When the Japanese Get Within Sight of That City—The Situation Startling.

PEKING, Dec. 11.—The angry feeling of the Chinese population here against foreigners is increasing.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The Globe this afternoon prints a letter from a British resident in China who occupies an important position, which brings him in touch with the mandarins and the natives. The writer says: "A tragedy may occur any day, or when the Japanese come within sight of the capital, I feel certain that every foreigner will be massacred. The foreign ministers will incur a perfectly insane risk if they remain there after the ice has closed the port of Tien Tsin. The greatest danger is in the fact that nearly all the soldiers are members of secret societies, which are ready to break out at the first chance."

BIG FIRE AT BUFFALO.

Berge's Wall Paper Factory Destroyed.

BUFFALO, Dec. 11.—Berge's wall paper factory, of Niagara and Maryland streets, was entirely destroyed by fire today. The loss is estimated at $200,000, and the insurance is said to nearly cover the damage. The factory was the largest individual plant of the kind in the country, and perhaps in the world. The Berges did not belong to the wall paper trust. About 500 hands will be thrown out of employment.

ROBBED THE OFFICE.

BELLAIRE, Ohio, Dec. 11.—Robbers entered the railroad station at Woodsfield, Ohio, and after knocking the agent insensible, secured him with ropes. The robbers then ransacked the station of express goods, railroad tickets and money, after which they fled.

HIS DAUGHTER FOUND.

Miss Mary Hoffman Writes to Learn About Her Father.

Tattered Man Wants His Dress Coat and Vest Auburn Screens to Come Down at Night.

The superintendent of police is in receipt of an interesting communication from Miss Mary E. Hoffman, of Kansas City. The young lady is a daughter of John Hoffman, who recently attempted to murder Hubert Adee at the St. Joe hospital and then attempted suicide. It was supposed that Hoffman had no relatives living and the receipt of the letter was quite a surprise to the officers. Miss Hoffman says the last she knew of the shooting was a day or so ago when she read an account of the affair in an old copy of the Kansas City Star. She was greatly surprised and stated that her father at one time had considerable money. Lately, however, he has been sending to the girl for cash. Miss Hoffman is a domestic and says she works hard for her earnings and wants to know what becomes of the funds she has been sending.

Hoffman is still at the jail and is hopelessly insane. He imagines everybody tries to prevent him from sleeping and would kill a man for snoring if he got a half chance.

SANTA HIS TREAT.

The police department is in receipt of a letter from a colored gentleman living at Pullman, Ill., inquiring for another dark skinned citizen who has an extra dress suit and vest. The man at Pullman loaned his friend the garments to come here and be married and now the groom and the togs have both disappeared.

NEW OFFICERS.

The police department is carrying the saloon war into the city council. Tonight an ordinance will be introduced providing that after 11 o'clock and until 5 o'clock the following morning, all screens, blinds, or any other obstruction that prevents a full view of the interior from the outside, shall be removed. The ordinance also provides that at 11 o'clock all persons in the saloons except those regularly employed there shall immediately go out and that the doors of the place shall be locked, and makes it a misdemeanor for anyone to refuse to go out when asked by the proprietor. The same ordinance binds the saloon to observance of the rules on Sunday also and provides an ample penalty for the violation.

POLICE STATISTICS.

There are thirty-four men on the police force. Nineteen are republicans and fifteen democrats. Thirty-one of these men will average in weight 185 pounds. Thirty-one will average five feet, eleven inches in height. The average age of all the men is thirty-six years. Of the men on the force fifteen were born in Indiana, twelve in Ohio, one in Michigan, one in New York, four in Germany and one in Scotland. The board of safety has taken great pains to get together a set of men who will be a credit to the community and in this all reasonable citizens will agree that they have succeeded.

ELKS' ENTERTAINMENT.

They Had a Big Audience and Gave a Good Show.

The minstrel entertainment given last evening by the Order of Elks crowded the Masonic Temple to the doors, almost every seat being taken, and was a creditable affair, indeed, as far as the excellence of the performance was concerned. Every act was a gem and every actor a star. The participants on the fine program rendered all acquitted themselves so creditably that it would be impossible to particularize. The first part of the program was rendered by local talent and the latter part by some special artists who were brought here for the occasion. The performance was a success in every way, and if it should be repeated would crowd the Temple again. The proceeds will be used by the Elks for charitable purposes.

The patrons of Dr. Price's Baking Powder having tested its merits comprehend its value.

A BEAUTIFUL PLACE

A Scottish Representative Takes a Trip Through the People's Store.

Approaching holidays always usher in a busy season for the storekeepers, and no establishment in the city gives better evidence of life and activity than that of the People's store, Beadell & Co., proprietors.

Through the kindness of Mr. H. G. Robertson, of the firm, a SENTINEL reporter this morning was shown through the large store. Before entering, the two magnificent windows were justly admired. In one are thousands of books and novelties artistically arranged, and in the other is a handkerchief display which puts in blush anything we have yet seen in this line. That there are over 5,000 handkerchiefs in this window alone gives some idea of the immense amount of labor required for Mr. Keck, the window dresser, to put the display in its present shape. Within the store the masculine mind simply quails before the bewilderment of interesting and displayed at every hand.

Beadell & Company have this year given an unusual amount of attention to their book department. All the latest publications, as well as the classics, can be had at prices which will astonish the book buyer. The books are the best bindings and prices are low enough to cause them to be convinced of their excellence at once.

It was an early hour ere the guests left for their respective homes, each having enjoyed themselves to their utmost.

The Indiana legislature will meet on January 10.

FARM prices of wheat and cotton December 1 were the lowest in years, according to an agricultural department report.

THE opposition to Governor McKinley in Ohio makes it look as if he would not be able to secure a solid delegation from his own state to the national republican convention in 1896.

TENNESSEE'S official vote is at last given to the public. The holding back of returns could not change the result. Evans, the republican candidate, was elected by a plurality of 841 votes. The total vote was Evans, 105,167; Turney, democrat, 104,326.

CARR HALL, of Danville, who has been appointed state oil inspector under State Geologist Blatchley will take office March 1. He will appoint thirteen deputy inspectors, one for each congressional district in the state. He says that these appointments would not be made until after he has taken office. He is receiving applications from many persons in each congressional district, sometimes as many as twenty a day. He says that each man's application will be filed, and will, at the proper time, receive due consideration. The deputy ships are worth from $300 to $900 a year.

A MEMBER of the legislature who believes that the practice should be stopped says he understands that an investigation would probably show that nearly all the men who occupy judicial positions in Indiana ride free on the railroads over which they are accustomed to travel. He also says that nearly all the state officers and most of the county officers have been in the habit of demanding free transportation of the railroad companies. It is suggested that the practice is one which it not prohibited under section 2093, the coming legislature should be called upon to investigate. The railroads do not discuss the subject but, it is said, there is evidence abundant that nearly every man elected in Indiana last November, from supreme judges down to justices of the peace has made demands upon the railroads for free transportation.

SENATOR VOORHEES, in an interview in regard to the tariff, said "My position with respect to further tariff legislation, must be determined by the question of revenue for the government. I would be glad, of course, to have sugar, coal and iron, and, indeed, all other raw materials, free from tariff taxation, if such a thing were possible, but in the present condition of the treasury, who will dare to enter upon legislation making a still greater deficiency in the public revenues? The tariff bill, as it passed the senate and became a law, provided beyond all question a sufficient amount of revenue, and the only reason why a deficiency exists in the treasury arises from the fact that many of its important provisions, the income tax among others, have not yet come into operation. Their postponement was made necessary by the opponents of the bill." Mr. Voorhees took strong grounds against further "tinkering" with the tariff at this session of congress.

Imbeciles.

In the popular meaning an imbecile is a half witted person. But Martha Louise Clark takes a different view of the subject in a paper in The Arena. Miss Clark is a well known teacher of imbecile children. She divides them into four classes—the harmless, passive sort, who are congenital paupers; the stubborn, brutal ones, governed almost entirely by passion; third, the class that have a little more sense than the former two, but whose sense runs to dishonesty and "little sneaking villainies;" fourth, the class that has some good inclination and "can, with help and sympathy, do fairly well in the struggle for existence."

"There is no doing anything permanently with the imbeciles of any class. It is from their ranks that the petty thieves and police court prisoners are recruited. They are not capable of steady work. She tells us that "cramps in thousands of cases betray the characteristic feature and expression of the imbecile." The same type of face is frequently found in the penitentiaries.

Of the fourth class, Miss Clark finds they are moral rather than mental imbeciles. Then is added the fearful sentence, "Thirty-four per cent of the imbecile children are the result of intemperance in parents and are sure to become drunkards themselves." They manifest often the characteristics of Chinese opium eaters, and the writer thinks they often must be the children of opium consuming parents.

The hopeless part of this matter of imbecile children is that there is no giving them permanently either sound morals or physical health and strength. They are born from parents like themselves. They are the saddest illustration of heredity on record. Most of them are born in slums and poorhouses. They in turn marry and perpetuate their kind. They are surely poisoning the blood of the whole race. Miss Clark mentions a family of seven children in the Pennsylvania institution for imbeciles. They had all been born in one poorhouse from a pauper mother.

That society will permit such reproduction to go on shows that it has no conception of the fearful curse it is bringing upon its own head. The procreation of the marriage and consequent increase of paupers and imbeciles Miss Clark considers to be the only remedy. Stop the deadly, poisoned stream at its source.

Greater New York.

It will probably be necessary to elect one more separate mayor of Brooklyn before the new consolidation scheme, the greatest every undertaken by cities, shall be effected. The mayor of New York serves a term of three years, and one has just been elected. The main question of municipal government when the union takes place will be whether it will be wise to give the mayor of greater New York absolute power of appointment and removal of most of the officers who serve the city executive department.

Of the material benefits which will accrue to the whole population from one consolidated government honestly administered there is not a shadow of doubt. It is a common saying that it now requires nearly as long to go from New York to Staten Island or to the outer edge of Brooklyn as it does to go to Philadelphia. When the great consolidation becomes reality, there will be bridges over the river, transit and bay and tunnels under them. There will be one vast system of rapid transit without change of cars. Staten Island expects the greatest boom of its life. A traction company has already secured the right to run cars over the old island with electric railways. Staten Island will become a vast city of residences. The union will probably not be finally accomplished before 1898.

An attempt was made at the trial of the Memphis lynchers to two popular prejudices against the court testimony of an imbecile or an agnostic to defeat justice. One of the witnesses against the lynchers, Butch Carver, tried to get off from giving evidence on the ground that he was an infidel, and therefore not a credible witness. But Judge Cooper suppressed this foolishness by ruling that Carver was a competent witness. Here indeed is an instance of speaking the livery of the court of heaven to serve the devil in.

Why does real economy prescribe the use of Dr. Price's Baking Powder? Because it is stronger, purer and more wholesome than any other

More Fort Wayne physicians have been using the anti-toxine remedy than the public is aware of, on account of the extreme modesty of the profession. They all report excellent results, and are anxious to obtain a new supply of the solution—which is difficult to get just now.

Old Fashioned compound cathartic pills, blue pills, "calomel or other mercurial preparations should not be used in these days of enlightened medical science, when it is so easy to get a purely vegetable pill in concentrated form, sugar-coated, in glass vials, at any drug store. Other medicines are kept.

Dr. Pierce was first to introduce a little Pill to the American people. Many have imitated, but none have approached his "Pleasant Pellets" in true worth, or value, for all laxative and cathartic purposes.

Once Used, they are Always in Favor.

Assist Nature a little now and then, with a gentle, pleasing laxative, there by removing offending matter from the stomach, and bowels, toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headache, indigestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness, jaundice, sick, bilious attacks, dizziness, sour stomach, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, pain in the side, back and kidneys, chills and fever, piles, constipation, costiveness, dry, hot skin, nervous headache, feverish conditions, inflammation of the bowels, and all derangements of the internal viscera.

To give, or not to give, that is the question. Whether it is better to stint the purse for weeks to come in order to make a display on one day out of 365, or to incur the passing glare of momentary disappointment. That is the conundrum that makes us pause these ante-Christmas days, when the fever of giving is full upon us and we would gladly mortgage our incomes for months ahead as long as we might revel in the present whirlwind of gift buying. If Christmas means to us and to others what it ought to, then the spirit of the day can be as well exemplified by simple remembrances that speak of peace and love quite as earnestly as the more expensive gifts that should only be chosen by those who can afford such to give. If you are blessed with an abundance of this world's goods, give liberally out of that abundance; if not, be just a little less enthusiastic and keep within your means, if you wish your Christmas day to be a truly happy one.

The effect of cooking with Dr. Price's Baking Powder spreads a ray of sunshine around the family circle.

COLONEL SOWIE'S BLADE.

He Wielded a Deadly Weapon That Made His Name Immortal.

Two states claim the birthplace of Colonel James Bowie—Tennessee and Maryland and the question has never been definitely settled, but he gave the name to a weapon as deadly as any that has ever been forged from steel.

Shortly after Louisiana became a state Spanish and French records created a great deal of trouble. It frequently happened that a planter who had taken up a large tract of land and fairly opened it out as a plantation would learn that it was claimed by some one under an old colonial grant. James Bowie was a very frequent claimant under these old laws, says a Chicago Times writer. Several capitalists of the time had sent him to Havana, where the old papers at the Spanish colony of Louisiana were kept, and caused careful transcripts of them to be made. They appointed as their agent to put them in possession of these properties James Bowie. In these early days it did not at any time take much persuasion to bring on "a personal encounter," as a fight to the death was euphoniously entitled. A man who had been to the trouble of opening up an estate only to find it claimed by a lot of people he did not know was generally pretty ready to fight for it, whether a fight would settle the question or not.

The consequence of this state of things was that James Bowie and his two brothers, Stephen and Resin Bowie, had on hand almost constantly some sort of "difficulty" that had to be fought out with deadly weapons. This was before the days when the percussion cap was in general use, and the smaller pistols of the period were flintlocks, inconvenient to carry and not very reliable. So the knife had to be used when one wanted a really trusted weapon. Mr. Bowie worked out with a pocketknife and wrought his idea of a weapon that would be about the proper thing for the business in hand, and it was made by the local blacksmith at Sabine Pass, Tex., after the model which he carried for several years.

About 1830, however, he heard of a New Orleans cutler, a Spaniard named Perez, who was making some knives of a wonderful kind and temper. They could be driven through a silver dollar without damage to point or edge. Mr. Bowie at once wanted himself of the professional services of Mr. Perez, who made him a knife which was a marvel of temper and beauty. The blade was of home hoop steel, blade and handle were the amusement of Indians. He must have spent in 10 or 12 months, and it was to be self-evident proof of him with his first Mexican adventure, showing the excellence of his fatal skill. He was found dead at the Alamo.

Besides the kind of making the knife was easy to offer to him. He did not find it to his hand with the long point downward, but grasped the handle as a swordsman would, and with the edge of his hand he always struck. Some of the work of his hand was done in the Mexican fight when he received his wounds. The last mention of his brothers is the one fought near Natchez in bed, as he lived on the Mississippi river almost all the time [illegible] to draw a proportionate share of the products of the association. The associate members will give their aid in either money or labor while they are on probation and will be entitled to all the privileges of the colony except the privilege of voting. When they are believed to have absorbed the true principles of Bellamy nationalism, they will be received into full membership. The association owns nine building lots, which were deeded the colony by Edward White, one of the members, in exchange for colony certificates. No money will be used by the colonists except in their dealings with the outside world, and they will build houses and manufacture different articles as a means of livelihood.

Dune Karns, who displays such an interest in the colony, was an oil region character almost as celebrated as Coal Oil Johnny. He was born at Karns Station, in Butler county, Pa., 51 years ago, was boring for oil in West Virginia before the war, entered the United States army at the age of 17, fought throughout the rebellion and left the service a first lieutenant. After the war he returned to the oil business, and at one time he had an income of $5,000 a day from a single oil well. Dune was fond of champagne, and whenever he made a rich strike he would smash every silk hat in town and pay for them the next day. He was at one time considered worth $3,000,000, but he's nearly all his money fighting the Standard Oil company.

SOMETHING WRONG.

A Policeman Meets a Man Who Is Too Grateful.

For five or six minutes the other afternoon a patrolman stood at the foot of Woodward avenue alongside of a young man who had a satchel in his hand and was waiting for a ferryboat. At length, as the officer started to saunter away, the young man handed him a cigar and said: "Thanks. I'll always remember your kindness."

"What is it?" queried the bluecoat as he hesitated over the cigar.

"Take it—take two of 'em! I'm a man who can appreciate a favor."

"But I—I"—

"That's all right—take three of 'em! I've traveled over most of this country and know a man when I see him."

"Will you explain yourself?" asked the officer. He clearly regarded the strange circumstances as wonderful or crazy.

"Certainly. Here I am, a perfect stranger to you. You have the right to walk up here and lock me with your club and run me in—thunder I am and what I am going around for now. You could just as easily call and fine it into the mayor, and you could draw me to a dime—I'll and be just ashamed for years and years. Have you done anything of the sort?"

"Not to that—not yet," began the officer, but the young man brought out two more cigars and said:

"I don't deserve favors! I haven't much money, but I want to show my gratitude in that form. You, sir, are one of nature's noblemen, and though I live for the next 50 years I shall never forget you. Instead of one thing me over the head and then jumping on my unconscious body with both feet and dragging me to the station near the cobble-stones, you have acted the part of a gentleman and a man who respects the rights of others. Sir, let me assure you that I shall never forget this consideration on your part. Officer, farewell!"

He made a break for the boat and was lost to view, and after thinking it over for five minutes the officer pocketed the cigars and walked away.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

RAILWAYS AND SHOPS.

General Superintendent Magee, of the Wabash, is Here.

Louis Hudey Will be Buried Thursday—A New Car Ventilating Device.

General Superintendent H. L. Magee and Division Supt. F. A. Goubl, of the Wabash road, arrived in the city in the former's special car this morning. They remained here until this afternoon.

VENTILATING CAR WINDOWS.

Two of the greatest banes of steam railway traveling are smoke and dust, and any attempt to enable a traveler to reach his destination with even a moderate sense of cleanliness will meet with its own reward. A ventilating window has been tried for some time in the cars of a progressive railway company, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat, with a view to remedy the intolerable quantity of the ordinary methods of car ventilation. The window has a single sash hinged at both ends and sides by slip-hinges, so that either side can be opened, or the sash can be pushed outward, parallel with the side of the car. Under ordinary conditions the window is swung open from the front hinges, so that the opening is protected by the sash. There is such a supply of fresh air that practically an inconvenience is experienced from the smoke of the locomotive. The rush of air past the window creates an exhaust and draws out the air from the car, fresh air being supplied through the deck windows in summer, while in winter the leakage of air around the deck windows and front door is sufficient for ventilation. So that a continuous exhaust goes on through the windows at all times. The nuisance of dust and the entrance of rain is prevented by a water table over the window, and there is also a brass shield on the bottom of the sash to hinder the dust from entering beneath. The shield slides in a groove in a sill. The sash closes against rubber strips, making an airtight fit when closed. To prevent the sashes being opened the wrong way a locking rod extends the length of the car, which is fitted over each platform. The rod is under the control of the brakeman who locks the hinges of the leading side of the window in the same way as on suburban cars; the alternate deck lights are opened or closed according to the direction in which the car is running. In a test of this new ventilator, the windows were purposely opened in the tunnels, and the small quantity of smoke that leaked in around the drop window, in the doorway and at the forward deck lights was exhausted by the window air current, and the air at the rear end of the car was sweet and clean.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gundersun, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction, she was brought down with pneumonia, succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little intermission and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery. It was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Dreier & Bro's Drug Store. Regular size, 50c and $1.00.

Important to Ball Goers of Ladies.

"I beg of the young men that will wear silly long frock coats and think themselves well dressed to stop it at once," says The Sunday-go-to Town Topics. "The long frock coat has been out of fashion for weeks, and London coats are now much extremely short, ending above the knee and branching out like a Chatterbox skirt. This notice should be put up in all clubs, less that a few some of the Knickerbocker men are still clinging to their last winter frock coats, with skirts that all but scrape the ground. And I suppose everybody has seen the new London derby hat. It is so flat as to appreciate and looks considerably like a fried egg."

Most Remarkable.

The street car company has issued a new set of orders to motormen, which will, no doubt, operate successfully in reducing the number of accidents. The new rules inform the men that citizens on street crossings are not trespassing, but have as good a right there as an electric car. At 12 30 o'clock this morning the fire department was called to No. 12 Stemmit street, where a barn in the rear of Fred Tegtmeyer's residence was in flames. The fire was a hot one while it lasted. A cow was burned out, but a lot of hay and a dozen or so chickens were burned up. The barn was insured for enough to cover the loss, which amounts to about $150. The neighboring barn on the property occupied by G. W. Graham, was also consumed with the contents. This barn is the property of James Smith, of Lewis street, and is insured to cover the loss. It is supposed that tramps who were sleeping in the haymow caused the fire.

In view of the fact that on January 1, 1895, the new TARIFF RATES on Woolens and Manufactured Goods will go into effect, manufacturers of clothing throughout the country have made every effort to dispose of the stock that they had manufactured this season, as the carrying over of merchandise this season would mean a GREAT LOSS to them. Some were successful in disposing of their stock, as there had been a fair demand for merchandise this fall, but the large majority of them are still loaded down and are awaiting an opportunity to unload at some price. We were approached by many offering us every inducement to buy, but we held off until this lot of suits were offered us by MICHAELS, STERN & CO., of Rochester, N. Y. This is the class of clothing that we are always looking for. The STYLE is right—the MAKE is right—the FIT is right, and the price that we have put upon them is less than you have ever bought similar qualities before. Gentlemen, come into our store, and give us a few minutes of your time, by trying on one of these suits and get the correct idea of the fit, make, style and workmanship of these suits. Do not think that because the price is so low that the goods must necessarily be of a similar standard. All we ask is a look, and if you are not satisfied that you are making a saving of $3.00 to $5.00, don't buy.

See Window Display.

'Tis well if you have deferred the purchase of a winter suit for now we offer this grand opportunity, which enables you to own an elegant and stylish suit at a fractional part of its real worth. We are and always have been "up to date." In the year 1894 we sell 1894 goods, nothing else. That's what are included in this sale. No short bob-tail sack coats, but the new, extra long cut. The variety of fabrics include: Black Clay Worsteds and Cheviots, Dark Cassimeres, and Fancy Mixed Cheviots and unfinished Worsteds. There is also a few of the fashionable steel and grey effects in Cheviots and Cassimeres. Every one of these suits were made for this season's trade. Every pattern we show is new, and the trimmings and workmanship is all that you can desire. These suits are actually worth $13, $15, $16 and $18, and you would consider them cheap at that. So confident are we of their strong value that we court a comparison with what other dealers will show you at from $1 to $3 higher in price. If you are interested in a good winter suit be on hand early as the quantities are not large and the line of sizes will will soon be broken.
